HOME OF MOKENA MAYOR BURGLARIZED

Three Mokena homes were burglarized and attempts were made to enter several others early Tuesday morning.

When Mayor Edward Martie arose Tuesday morning he discovered his pocket book was missing from his overall pocket. Upon further investigation it was found that a purse belonging to Mrs. Martie had also been taken. The total loot was about $4.90 cents. Mayor Martie had failed to lock the house door and the robbers are supposed to have gained entrance that way. Mayor and Mrs. Martie did not hear the robbers and did not know that they had been robbed until they arose Tuesday morning.

The robbers also gained entrance thru a window in the G. M. Kraus home without the family hearing a sound. Here a revolver and about $3.50 in change was taken.

At the Frank Hirsch, Sr., home on Front street, the burglars gained entrance by removing a screen from the pantry window. Food that was in the way was removed and placed untouched in the yard and the screen was replaced.

About three o'clock Tuesday morning Mr. Hirsch arose to go to the bathroom. He turned on the electric light and as he entered the kitchen to go to the bathroom, a man stood in the kitchen door and when he saw Mr. Hirsch, he called out "Milk" and ran out doors. Mr. Hirsch quickly snapped on the porch light and ran out on the porch but saw no further signs of the holdup man. Later in the morning Mr. Hirsch found his trousers lying out doors and the empty pocket book of Mayor Martie beside them. All the loot secured at the Hirsch home was $1.25 in change.

Mr. Hirsch saw two suspicious looking fellows in his tavern Monday evening, one being a tall thin man, the other small and slim built. During the previous day a car with three men in it had been seen riding about town and it is thought they may have been the bandits.

An attempt was made to break in the Fred Steinhagen residence with out any success. The old John Liess home on Front street now vacant, was broken into, but no damage was done or anything taken.

Two strangers were picked up Tuesday morning and searched at the village jail, but none of the stolen money was found on them and they were released.

Watch dogs at the Elmer Sippel home and the A. C. Hall home set up a furious barking during the time the robberies were going on in their neighborhoods, but the dogs owners did not investigate the cause of the dogs agitation.

Mokena residents are now keeping their doors and windows locked and their revolvers handy.

The money was in a tin can which had been placed in a hiding place on a shelf, but was found by the robbers. The robbery was not discovered until the store was opened Tuesday morning. Entrance was gained thru a window.

COOK COUNTY SCHOOLS MAY BE FORCED TO CLOSE

The rural school situation in Cook County is reaching a very serious stage according to Cook County Supt. of Schools Otto F. Aken, due to lack of funds with which to continue operations.

According to Supt. Aken, the four elementary schools in Midlothian, district 143, enrolling 919 pupils, will close December 15 for lack of funds unless outside aid is provided before that time.

Roland K. Cummings, president of the district school board has declared that they have paid their 22 teachers with tax warrants and this year they could not even issue warrants for them.

The district in question has a total assessed valuation of $2,223,583 but the district has only been able to collect only 39 per cent of the 1932 tax levy and 52 per cent of the 1931 levy. The district has $230,895 outstanding in bonds, tax warrants and teachers orders. Two-fifths of the families in the district are on relief.

District 143 includes the communities of Midlothian, Robbins, Posen and Crestwood.

Supt. Aken in giving out the names of 44 Cook county rural and village schools with an enrollment of 14,492 pupils and employing 409 teachers, which he said, will not be able to carry on classes in 1935 unless they obtain aid, listed the Tinley Park public school in district 146 and the Orland Park public school in district 135.

When interviewed, a member of the Tinley Park Board of Education stated that the Tinley Park school is still in a position to carry on. The school has plenty of fuel for all the winter needs and the six teachers and the janitor are willing to go along with the school board until the needed aid can be secured to continue 1935 operations, so the Tinley Park school will be able to keep open for some time to come.

The school official pointed out that the school districts cannot balance their budgets as the amounts assessed in the various school districts are not collected in full so that the budgets are short a few thousand dollars each year and soon the districts are so far behind that it is impossible to balance the budgets at all.

Another reason for the school crisis is that in former years nearly 50 per cent of the taxes collected were used for school purposes but in the present day only 15 per cent of the taxes collected go for school purposes.

Still another matter that helps to contribute to the tightness of the school funds is that fact that in some rural sections of Cook county teachers have only four pupils in a one room school. The cost of the teacher's salary and operating expenses of the school, means that the cost of educating the four pupils is far more than if the district were abolished and the pupils sent to a larger school nearby. Some school officials feel that the consolidation of the rural and small village schools in the metropolitan area will mean a big saving in school operation expenses and at the same time give the pupils a better education than is possible in the small one room schools.

At Orland Park the public school is still functioning normally and there does not seem to be any alarm that the school will not keep on operating thruout the 1935 term.

It is up to the state to come to the aid of the schools. The people in general feel that if the crooked, grafting politicians could be subdued, the school problem could be adjusted very easily. Politics in the last decade has raised havoc with the public school system in many instances.

Mokena Man Shoots At Fleeing Thief

Last Saturday morning about two o'clock Ernest Lehnert of Mokena was awakened by the cries of banty chickens roosting in a tree near his home. Sensing that chicken thieves must be nearby he grabbed his revolver and went out in the yard and saw a figure heading for the rear of a corn crib. Mr. Lehnert fired several shots at the fleeing man and the chicken house was not molested. No further trace of the supposed chicken thief was found. August Hentsch heard the shots and saw a man running down the street.

Orland Apollos Rival Fair Sex With Feminine Charms

Ladies clothes, wigs, cosmetics, rouge and lip sticks, transformed many of the Orland Park Apollos into feminine goddesses last Thursday and Friday evenings when they appeared in stellar roles in the scream of a play "Womanless Wedding" sponsored by the men of the Orland Park M. E. church at the Orland Park School Auditorium.

The men folk impersonated the fair sex so cleverly that a stranger might easily have mistaken the Adonises for members of the fair sex.

The all star cast with Elmer Newton as the leading lady provoked screams of laughter from the large audience.

Sherman Knox took the part of the astute butler to perfection. The punch girls impersonated by Gordon Kay and Al Munch stirred up a potion which seemed to tickle the palates of all who partook of it. The present takers, Wm. Beagley, Jr., and Roy Cleveland were very attractive female charmers. L. M. Arnold as the weeping mother certainly kept Earl Sayers as the consoling father, busy in his consoling attempts. Ray Ludwig as Ikey Rosenstein, was a persistent Hebrew peddler determined to make "a sale" and in spite of repeated evictions by the butler, he continually reappeared to ply his trade with an apparently marked degree of success. James Gee took the part of the typical old maid aunt with her canary bird cage and old time clothes. L. C. Kay and Harvey Boley portrayed the venerable grandparents of the "bride" to a t. The dapper Charley Chaplain was cleverly impersonated by Wm. Ohlrich. He managed to flit in and out among the "notable" personages gathered for the wedding. Elmer Yerk and Raymond Lester as the uncle and aunt from Puckerville created much merriment with their country rube antics.

Charles and Tom Cooper were the demure twin sisters. The charming Mary Pickford was pleasingly impersonated by Don Cleveland. Chris Munch and Franklin Loebe were very sober as the haughty father and mother. Royal Glahn as the female fashion plate was much admired by the men and women of the audience. Wm. Jacobson and Lennie Wymer looked the part in their portrayal of the dear old couple, the groom's grand parents. As the incorrigible bad boys, Ralph Wymer and James Creer created screams of laughter with their mischievous stunts which earned them repeated sound spankings, but seemingly to no avail. Lincoln Macaulay as the henpecked husband had a hard time to break away from his watchful spouse, Howard Creer. As the later was so much taller and of a more husky nature he obeyed the dictates of his "devoted wife."

Coy and coquettish was Clarence E. Beagley as the famed Sis Hopkins. Bob Davidson and Henry Anderson as Pat and Rosie O'Grady portrayed the typical Irish couple with their witty remarks and catchy Irish tunes. George Munch as the unsophisticated country cousin caused many a laugh. Dressed in true mountain folk style and singing the popular hill billy songs heard on the radio, Harold Ferrin and Edward Conway, introduced as the "hill billys from Worth" carried out their act commendably. Sweet and pretty as a picture was the famous Annie Laurie impersonated by John Mullen whose rendition of the old favorite Scotch songs was indeed pleasing to the audience, but called forth a flood of tears from the wedding party. This kept Ikey busy selling handkerchiefs. Solemn and

MOKENA BOY SAYS NEGRO ATTACKED HIM

Melvin Sandrock, son of Joseph Sandrock residing across the road from the St. John cemetery south of Mokena on Wolf road, reports that while he was walking home on the Wolf road about 7:30 o'clock Monday night, he was attacked by a negro near the driveway leading to his home. A Packard car bearing a Chicago license was standing on the highway near the driveway. As the boy neared the driveway the negro called out to him to halt, but instead he started to run. The negro ran after him and struck him on top of the head with a revolver butt. The blow knocked Melvin down, but he scrambled to his feet and ran again and whistled for his father. The family watch dog began to bark and when Mr. Sandrock came out of the house the negro headed back for the car and got in and headed north toward Mokena. The Sandrock boy carried a flash light and claimed he saw four other burly negroes in the car beside the negro who attempted to hold him up. Melvin suffered a scalp wound. He was wearing a hat at the time of the attempted hold up and the blow dealt him by the negro, cut a hole thru the hat.

Bedtime Story for Children

FAREWELLS AND WELCOMES

ALL through the long summer Peter watched his feathered friends and learned things in regard to their ways he had never suspected. As he saw them keeping the trees of the Old Orchard free of insect pests, picking up countless seeds of weeds everywhere, and helping Farmer Brown in his garden, he began to understand something of the wonderful part these feathered people have in keeping God's Great World beautiful and worth living in. He had many a hearty laugh as he watched the bird babies learn to fly and to find their own food. All about him all summer long they were going to school, learning how to watch out for danger and how to use their eyes and ears and all the things a bird must know who would live to grow up.

As the days grew shorter and fall drew near Peter discovered that his feathered friends were gathering in flocks and roaming here and there. It was one of the first signs that summer was nearly over, and it gave him just a little feeling of sadness. He heard few songs, for the singing season was over. Also he discovered that many of the hitherto most beautifully dressed of his feathered friends had changed their finery for sober traveling suits in preparation for the long journey far south where they would spend the winter. The fact is, he actually failed to recognize some of them at first.

September came and some of Peter's friends bade him good-by. They were starting on the long journey, planning to take it in easy stages for the most part. Each day saw some fly away. As Peter thought of the dangers before them he wondered rather wistfully if he would ever see them again. But some there were who lingered even after Jack Frost's first visit. Welcome and Mrs. Robin, Winsome and Mrs. Bluebird, Little Friend the Song Sparrow and his wife were among these. But by and by even they were forced to leave.

Sad indeed and lonely would these days have been for Peter had it not been that with the departure of the friends he had spent so many happy hours with was the arrival of certain other friends from the Far North, where they had their summer homes. Some of these stopped for a few days only. Others came to stay, and Peter was kept busy looking for and welcoming them. A few old friends of the summer would stay all winter. Sammy Jay was one, Downy and Hairy, the Woodpeckers, were others. And one there was whom Peter loved dearly; it was Tommy Tit the Chickadee.

FISH AND FISH SAUCES

FISH is always in season, as canned, pickled and smoked fish are available in almost any inland city when the fresh ones are not to be found in the market. There are occasions other than in hot weather when jellied fish is desirable; the following is a favorite:

Jellied Fish.

Remove the bones and skin of a two-pound fish. Chop fine and add a half cupful of water, a teaspoonful of grated onion, two dozen blanched and finely chopped almonds and a dash of cayenne. When all these ingredients are well blended pack into a mold and steam for an hour. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Fish a la Reine.

Put one tablespoonful of butter into a saucepan and when melted add one tablespoonful of flour, mix well and add one cupful of rich milk, stir and cook until smooth. Remove from the heat and add the yolk of one egg and three mushrooms finely chopped, a tablespoonful of minced parsley, one-half teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper. Add to this one and one-half cupfuls of flaked fish—any cold boiled or canned fish will serve. Heat over hot water and serve in potato baskets.

Roe Sauce.

To make roe sauce, wash the roe, drop into boiling water and simmer for twenty minutes; drain and with a silver fork remove all the membrane; add one-half cupful of butter and place over a dish of hot water; when very hot add a half cupful of cream, a half teaspoonful of onion juice, a teaspoonful of salt, a pinch of mace and serve in a sauce boat.

Sauce Tartar.

Place four egg yolks, four tablespoonfuls of water, and four tablespoonfuls of olive oil together. Stand in a dish of hot water and stir until the mixture thickens; take from the heat, add a tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar, two chopped olives, one chopped sour pickle and a tablespoonful of capers chopped fine; add one tablespoonful of finely minced parsley, a half teaspoonful of salt and a dash of cayenne. Serve at once.

Only the Lonely Hearted Know

By ANNE CAMPBELL

ONLY the lonely hearted know
How dark the midnight hour,
When heavy lies their weight of woe,
And closed is Hope's bedraggled flower.

Only the lonely hearted thrill
To dawn's awakening,
Watching the sun upon the hill,
Hearing the birds of morning sing.

Only the lonely hearted find
In painful pathways trod,
A poised and well-contented mind,
A kinship with the living God.

What Duke Did With Its $40,000,000

TEN years ago people asked: "What will Duke college do as the main beneficiary of the $40,000,000 James B. Duke endowment?" This excellent air panorama gives the answer. On the edge of Durham township in North Carolina is Duke university, surrounded by a 5,000-acre campus; one of the most compact and beautiful in America. The unit was first occupied in 1930 after the completion of a $20,000,000 building program. In the foreground is the stadium, seating 35,000 persons. Also shown are the various athletic fields, baseball diamonds and tennis courts. The building unit is 4,150 feet long and is dominated by the 210-foot chapel tower which contains a carillon of 50 bells. The unit includes a medical school with a hospital of 456 beds with a separate $6,000,000 endowment. All of the buildings are of Gothic architecture. Physical development has been paralleled by academic growth. The Duke library has nearly 400,000 volumes and the faculty includes many internationally known scholars and scientists.

News Brevities of Illinois

Three roughly dressed robbers held up the woman cashier of the Buckley State bank and fled with $928.

James F. Kirk, sixty-one, farmer, near Ludlow, died as a result of injuries received when he fell from a haymow.

Rivin W. Rosenberg, twenty-six, Bellville grocery store manager, accidentally shot and killed himself while hunting near Damiansville.

The federal treasury department made public the cancellation of the $250,000 allotment for extending and remodeling the post office at Peoria.

Roy W. Harris, city treasurer of Carterville, despondent over unemployment committed suicide at his father's home in Ozark by shooting himself in the temple.

Gov. Henry Horner issued a call for a fourth special session of the Illinois legislature to meet November 19 to consider a proposed extension of the 2 per cent sales tax.

Arthur Eveland, nineteen, Granite City, and Arthur Booth, twenty-one, of Pekin, were arrested in Pekin and confessed, police said, to a $60 armed hold-up of a tavern at Mackinaw, Ill.

President Roosevelt will be asked to pardon Andrew Russel of Jacksonville, former state treasurer and auditor of public accounts. Russel was sentenced to an 18-month term on the federal detention farm at Milan, Mich., for conspiracy that led to the failure of Ayres National bank in Jacksonville two years ago.

Bids on the $30,000,000 unemployment relief bond issue ratified at election will be received by the state November 22. The bonds will be a 20-year serial issue dated December 15, with an interest rate of not more than 6 per cent. The bond issue will retire $28,500,000 of state revenue notes sold this year to finance relief expenditures.

A mysterious revolt, which developed after the election, against State Chairman Justus L. Johnson of Aurora ended at a meeting in Chicago of the Republican state committee in Johnson's retention as state chairman but shorn of his powers. A committee of five other members of the state committee was appointed and given full powers to ratify or veto any future actions of the state chairman. Its members are: Thomas J. Houston, Chicago, chairman; S. Timothy Washington, Chicago; Roy E. Larsen, Galesburg; William R. Allen, Peoria, and John H. Searling, Carbondale.

The lives of 75 orphan children were imperiled when an explosion, supposedly of a furnace, and rapidly spreading flames destroyed the main building of the Hudson orphanage, a Baptist institution at Irvington, seven miles south of Centralia. Quick action by officials of the home prevented injury to the children, who were at play about the building in the school yard when the blast occurred. Fortunately, the children had left the building for recess a few minutes before the explosion, otherwise many of them might have been killed. The fire was completely out of control by the time fire equipment from Centralia reached the scene.

Funds supplied by Illinois for relief purposes for the first ten months of this year have totaled $31,568,337, according to figures disclosed by Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. This expenditure compares with $14,193,890 spent during the entire year of 1933. "Most of the state funds used this year," Reynolds said, "have represented advances against the $30,000,000 relief bond issue which was given approval by voters at a referendum on November 6. Illinois' contribution to relief of the state's destitute was 39.3 per cent of $80,000,000 thus expended during the past ten months. Of the balance of the fund for unemployed the federal government supplied 59.6 per cent and local governmental units, particularly townships, contributed 1.1 per cent. The FERA supplied all federal funds in the form of direct grants to the state.

Hailed as the best junior corn growers in the state, William E. Hamilton of Good Hope, McDonough county, and six other boys have been selected out of all the 2,174 boys' and girls' 4-H Corn club members of Illinois to share the 1934 corn growing honors. The seven winners have been named by E. I. Pilchard and other 4-H officials of the college of agriculture, University of Illinois. Hamilton was selected as the 1934 Illinois winner in the national corn achievement contest and as such is now in line for national honors. Two other boys, Robert P. Coates, Neponset, Bureau county, and Jay Tompkins, Fiat, Fulton county, were named the year's state champions in the 4-H corn growing project. Four other boys made records outstanding enough to win a place on the 1934 honor roll of corn club members. They are Albert Owens, Marion, Williamson county; Gullford Fasse, Minier, Tazewell county; Eugene Greenleaf, Jacksonville, Morgan county, and Oscar Dornblaser, Jr., Hume, Edgar county.

Charles Wilson, fifty-four, was strangled to death in Onarga when he fell forward from a chair across an iron bed, his neck resting so that breathing was impossible.

Paul M. Dunn, Fourth division commander of the American Legion, said the next state convention of the organization would be held in Joliet at a date to be determined later.

While Mrs. Clara Nido and a son were attending a theater in Rockford, thieves broke into Mrs. Nido's home and stole $1,000 in $5, $10, and $20 gold pieces which had been hidden in the house.

SCHOOL IN THE SKY

The headmaster of a Dutch school has conceived the brilliant idea of using an air liner to teach geography. Instead of trooping dolefully into their classroom, the children now eagerly take their seats in the airplane, each with a map beside him and a pair of earphones. While the flight is in progress, the geography master, sitting before a microphone in the fore part of the cabin, points out and explains the features of the countryside below, and the pupils check his remarks on their maps. A prearranged section of the Netherlands is taken with each flight. The children, it is found, absorb their lessons with 20 times the enthusiasm shown on the ground.—Tit-Bits Magazine.

Why Hospitals Use a Liquid Laxative

Hospitals and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. And the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. Do you know the reasons?

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right dose of a liquid laxative brings a more natural movement, and there is no discomfort at the time, or after.

The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.

A properly prepared liquid laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin brings safe relief from constipation. It gently helps the average person's bowels until nature restores them to regularity. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative which all druggists keep ready for use. It makes an ideal family laxative; effective for all ages, and may be given the youngest child.

WATCH YOUR KIDNEYS!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering impurities from the blood stream. But kidneys get functionally disturbed—lag in their work—fail to remove the poisonous body wastes.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, attacks of dizziness, burning, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains; feel "all worn out."

Don't delay! For the quicker you get rid of these poisons, the better your chances of good health.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They tend to promote normal functioning of the kidneys; should help them pass off the irritating poisons. Doan's are recommended by users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

Do YOU Know—

That the word "stocking" comes to us from "stock" which was formerly used as a covering for the legs and feet, combining breeches or "upper stocks" and stockings or "nether stocks." The use of stockings originated in the cold countries of northern Europe, the earliest being made of skins.

SYNOPSIS

Prudence Schuyler comes to Prosperity Farm, inherited from her uncle, to make a new life for herself and her brother, David, his health broken by tragedy. The second day on her farm Prue falls from the barn loft into the arms of Rodney Gerard, rich young man, a neighbor. There is at once a mutual attraction, but Prudence decides to maintain a cool attitude toward him. She suspects men since her sister's husband ran away with her brother's wife, Len Calloway tries to buy Prue's timber, but she dislikes him and contracts with Rod to dispose of the trees. David comes to the farm. A clown appears, advertising a circus in a nearby town. Prue accompanies Rod and Jean to the show. While they are watching the parade, Chicot, an old clown, is accidentally killed. He was the grandfather of Milly Gooch, one of the circus riders. Rod became friendly with Milly when she lived on Prosperity Farm. Calloway intimidates available laborers so that they cannot be hired to cut the timber for Rodney Gerard. Milly Gooch broke her engagement to Calloway; he believes Rod was the cause and has since been his enemy. After the accident to Chicot, Rod calls on Milly to see if he can be of any help.

"It's so fine, I'll tuck it in here." She thrust it under her low-cut bodice.

"What will you do this winter, Milly?"

"Hollywood." Two big shots from a traveling talkie studio saw me ride a month ago. And what do you think? Mother Puffer and old 'whatta mean is' Si came to see me this afternoon! She wants I should spend Christmas with them. What say, Roddy?"

"If you visit the Puffers you may run into Len Calloway."

"What if I do? I'll give him a little whirl for old times' sake. You don't think I'm afraid of that big noise, do you? I've traveled some since I sent you that S O S."

"And traveled straight, Milly?"

She met his eyes squarely. "Sure thing. Didn't I promise? I'm off men, they're just a game, anyway."

"Time for your act, Milly."

As the maid spoke behind them, a groom in rose-color velvet with silver trimming led a milk-white horse bridled with rhinestones to the tent.

Milly caught Rodney's hands and looked up at him. "I'll be good. I promised you, didn't I? There's only one person who could tempt me not to be, and he—doesn't know I'm on earth. He—"

A hiss. A flash cut off the word.

"What was that?"

"Don't be so jumpy, Roddy. If you traveled with this show you'd get used to that sound. Flashlight. Publicity, of course. Some reporter writing up the show wants a picture." A whistle blew. "That's for me. I'd better get going. Bye-bye, Roddy. Don't—don't send me any more money—ever—I won't need it—now that I've gone Hollywood. Perhaps you'll be at High Ledges at Christmas—if Miss Schuyler stays."

What had she meant by that, Gerard wondered, as his eyes followed her in her rose-color tulle and glistening satin across the yard. Was his feeling for Prue so evident?

One foot on the step of his car, Gerard stopped and stared. Had a red roadster shot out of the parking place just ahead, or was Len Calloway so much on his mind that he had imagined it?

Prudence pulled at the wire netting at one side of the poultry yard.

"Darn!" she gouted between her teeth, as the elusive thing wriggled away from her. "Mr. Si, I'm not so good as I thought. Give me a hand, will you?"

Puffer seized the netting, and pulled. "Grand! Hold it a minute till I get this bird in; two more and it's done. These pesky hens got out yesterday and scratched in my garden border. There! I'd like to see them get through that!"

"The pesky hens ain't the only things that escaped yesterday. Hear 'bout the convict who dug himself out of prison?"

"Jane Mack heard the announcement on the radio and told me. She's all excited about it. He isn't likely to come to this small town, is he?"

"Gorry-me, he'd be running his head into a noose if he did." Puffer shook the wire netting. "That's a good job you've done. And you've done another good job. Your brother is so much better."

Prudence sprang to her feet. Her eyes shone, her face was radiant.

"Then you've noticed it, too, Mr. Si? It isn't just my imagination?"

"Sure, I've noticed it. So's Mother. Whatta mean is, his color is better, his voice is stronger, an' he moves quicker. Comin' to live in the country is just settin' David on his feet. Rod's noticed it, too."

"Oh, he has! I haven't seen Mr. Gerard lately so I didn't know. Prudence avoided Puffer's eyes as she remembered the many times of late that she had fled to the barn loft so that she would not see Rodney Gerard when he called.

"Gorry-me, you haven't seen him? Seen Jim Armstrong?"

"No. Dave has, but—but I was out when he called."

"Well, of course, Rod was away to the city most three weeks trying to get some firms to sign up for the timber you and him are goin' to cut. Since he come back he's been terrible busy cruising the woods. Rod isn't used to havin' difficulty gettin' what he wants; things have always come easy for him. This lumber business 'pears to be gettin' on his nerves. Jim was tellin' me this morning that Rod snapped at every one who come near him yesterday. Perhaps it's that newspaper picture of him and Milly Gooch holdin' hands in front of her tent at the circus that come out in the local paper the day after the show was here that got him mad. Well, if here he isn't now! What you gum-shoeing round like that for, Roddy?"

Prudence was furious at her own start of surprise. Had Rodney Gerard seen it? He did look troubled. There were lines between his nose and mouth she never had seen before; he had lost some of his bronze. His eyes seemed deeper and darker and bluer in contrast.

"Well, will I pass? Perhaps you weren't sizing me up, perhaps you were just wondering how it happened that I had caught you, Prue of Prosperity farm."

"Don't bite, Rod." Si Puffer flung himself into the breach. "Now that you've got company, Miss Prue, I'll go an' chop some wood."

He moved away with surprising quickness.

"Mr. Si!" Prudence started after him, but Gerard caught her arm and held it.

"You're not going until you tell me why you have been dodging me."

"I dodging! How absurd!"

"Is it? Drop that hammer. It makes you look bloodthirsty." As she still clutched the tool, he loosened her fingers until it dropped to the ground.

"That's better. I want to talk to you before Armstrong and Jean get here. Have you seen that infernal picture?"

"Picture?" Prue echoed the word with breezy indifference.

"Don't bluff. You know perfectly well that I'm referring to that fool snapshot of Milly Gooch and me at the circus."

"Oh, that! Really, I'm not interested."

"Look here, you've got to be interested. I'm willing to bet my roadster that Calloway had a hand in that. It would be like his methods—"

"Don't abuse Len Calloway. It would be disloyal for me to listen because—Prudence hoped that her eyes and voice were as maddeningly provocative as she intended them to be—

"because, you see, I've decided to have him cut my timber."

"What!"

Never had she seen eyes blaze as Rodney Gerard's blazed in his white face. She remembered what Si had said about his mood the last week. She shouldn't have tried to torment him—but—hadn't that hateful picture hurt her, too? He caught her by the shoulders.

"You didn't mean that, Prue, about letting Calloway cut for you."

"Of course I meant it. The more I think of it the more I go bullish on the idea. I'm beginning to like Len very much. He's so forceful, so—"

"Forceful!" For a pulsing instant Rodney Gerard hesitated, then he caught her in his arms. "Forceful!"

He crushed his mouth, hard, ardent, upon hers. "If that's what you like—Gorgeous—" He kissed her again.

Prudence wrenched herself free. Every pulse in her body was throbbing unbearably. How had he dared! Was that the way he kissed the circus rider? She dragged her voice back.

"Don't ever speak to me again! Ever! Do you think I'll let you cut my timber now? Suppose Len Calloway does cheat me in money, at least I shall be safe with him."

"Prue! You can't do it! You knew what you were doing when you looked at me like that. You're no child. Be a sport. You deliberately smashed my control, and now you make me pay for letting myself go. Well, I'll take my medicine, I will keep away until you want me, I'll never kiss you again until you ask me to, if—"

"I ask you? That's the funniest thing I ever heard."

"All right, it's the funniest thing you ever heard. But the promise stands. I—"

"Hi! Rod!"

The hail came from the garden. Prudence dashed toward the gate and collided with a big, spectacled man with heart warming eyes. He smiled.

"Miss Schuyler, isn't it? I would recognize you anywhere from Jean's description. I'm Jim Armstrong, and I am happy to report that you have a nice little bunch of money in your wood lot."

Prudence extended an eager hand. "Have I really! I'm so glad you've come. Now I can learn a lot about trees. Will you take me on as a pupil?"

From the corner of her eye Prue noted with satisfaction the set of Rodney Gerard's jaw. She would show him that he couldn't kiss her after he had been holding Milly Gooch's hands.

Jim Armstrong laughed. "Sure I'll take you along if Rod says the word. He's my boss. I'm a whale of a teacher. Rod said you had a plan of your wood lot, The Hundreds, Miss Schuyler. May I see it?"

"Of course. It's in my shop. I'll bring it to the living room."

Prudence was conscious of Gerard watching her as a few moments later she cleared a place on her brother's desk and spread out the blueprint. Jean danced in from the kitchen, her hands full of cookies.

She crossed the room to speak to David Schuyler seated in the wing chair. As Armstrong joined them, Rodney Gerard detained Prudence at the desk.

"Wait a minute! Look here, Prue, you didn't mean what you said about letting Calloway cut that timber. You mustn't do it."

The sternness of his voice sent tingles through her veins, but she kept her lids provokingly lowered.

"I can transact my own business, thank you. When I need help I shall appeal to Mr. Armstrong. He impresses me as being such a reliable, self-controlled person."

"And I'm not. I get you. All right, let me cut your timber and you will have no fault to find with me again—ever—I'll be the original ice man."

He turned on his heel.

As the outer door closed on Armstrong and Gerard, Prudence crossed to the fireplace and head on her hands resting on the mantel looked unseeing down at the red coals.

"Is Armstrong an old friend, Prue?" her brother asked.

His tone brought the color to her face. "No. I've never seen him before today. Why?"

"You seemed to twinkle, twinkle with excitement when you spoke to him."

She dropped to the floor cushion beside his chair. "Humorous, aren't you? Perhaps I did rather overdo the welcome-to-our-city act, Dave, but—"

"I found that on the floor near Gerard's desk. Now will you let me handle your timber?"

Furious with herself that she had stood like a lump of putty and listened to the note, an unbearable realization that it confirmed her suspicions of Rodney Gerard's philandering roughened the voice in which Prudence scoffed:

"You must be the original if-at-first-you-don't-succeed-try-try-again lad. But this time you have thrown sand in the machinery. It won't work. Rodney Gerard and I will get that timber out."

Calloway's eyes burned red.

"You and Rodney Gerard! That's a joke. Try to get men to cut. Just try, that's all. I suppose you are trusting to your partner for that?"

Prudence swallowed a nervous chuckle. "You have guessed it. I am trusting to my partner to engage the men to cut. Good morning."

He looked like a man who was still dazed from a body blow as he departed. Once his lips moved, but Prue banged the door behind him before he could speak.

She leaned against it. Had Calloway found that note of Milly Gooch's in Rodney Gerard's room? "Don't mail it again." Apparently there had been other checks. Why hadn't she asked the man why he had been snooping at High Ledges? Not that she cared who wrote to Rodney Gerard or what he did with his money. Mrs. Walt had been right. Her butterfly brother did flit from flower to flower. He had thought that she—Prudence Schuyler—would allow—

A sob of fury shook her. She brushed her hand savagely across her lips.

Brazilian Catfish Amuse Visitors to Aquarium; Suspend Selves by Suction

The Brazilian catfishes are the comedians of the aquarium and provide more fun for the money than any other fish, says the Detroit News. They are becoming increasingly popular for a more utilitarian purpose, namely, that of scavengers. The corydoras are very hardy and they work incessantly at their scavenging job.

Some varieties attach themselves by suction of their mouths to the sides of the tank and hang vertically for hours. Though they like to prowl among the plants, they do not uproot them.

Many persons, recalling native catfish, are surprised to learn of the coloration of some of the South American species. Some of them are marked with metallic blue, splashes of black or dark brown or lateral stripes.

One interesting species is Octoclinus vittatus, which comes from Brazil. It is about an inch and a half long and has a habit of suspending itself for long periods at a time.

The catfish imported from South America are not to be confused with native catfish, which grow to a huge size. The catfish from South America average about two inches, although some species attain a somewhat larger size.

A King Was Cold

The judge's ermine and the mayor's fur collar are relics of the times when the temperatures of law courts and banqueting halls in England made them not an ornament but a necessity. Even at coronations it was hopeless to try to warm the Abbey, so the king and his august subjects were warmed instead, and modern sovereigns have cause to remember how chilly their ancestors felt when they in turn stifle under the same heavy fur robes. So cold were the homes of England that those who could afford it even slept in fur, and an old account book mentions the purchase of 17 skins to make a nightgown for Queen Elizabeth.

Lesson for December 2

THE CHRISTIAN AS A WITNESS

LESSON TEXT—I Thessalonians 1:1-10.

GOLDEN TEXT—But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you; and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth. Acts 1:3.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Sharing our Stories of Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Sharing the Good News of Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Good News We Have to Tell.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Witnessing for Christ.

I. Paul's Greeting (v. 1).

In this salutation Paul associates with himself Silas and Timothy. Silas was with him at the founding of the church, and Timothy was the special messenger sent unto them, upon whose report this letter is based (3:1, 2).

In this epistle he sets forth the peculiar position of the safety of the church. It is "in God the Father and in the Lord Jesus Christ." Knowledge of the absolute security of the believer in Christ makes him courageous to meet trials and opposition. Two features characterize this greeting, "Grace be unto you and peace." "Grace" expresses God's attitude toward them; "peace," the resultant experience in their lives.

II. Paul's Thanksgiving (vv. 2, 3).

This thanksgiving issues from the remembrance of three outstanding facts concerning the Thessalonians, which constitute the foundation facts of normal Christian experience.

1. "Work of Faith." This relates to their belief of the gospel which brought them into living relationship with the Lord Jesus Christ, and also to their Christian activity growing out of their faith. Jesus Christ said in answer to the question "What must we do that we may work the works of God?" "This is the work of God that ye believe on him whom he hath sent" (John 6:28, 29).

2. "Labor of Love." This means the spirit by which they performed their Christian duties. It was the expression of the new law of life issuing from the enthronement of Jesus Christ in their hearts.

3. "Patience of Hope." This refers to the strength of their endurance growing out of their expectation of the speedy return of the Lord. The transcendent theme of Paul's preaching at Thessalonica was the second coming of Christ (Acts 17:7).

III. The Reasons for Paul's Thanksgiving (vv. 4-7).

1. Their election of God (vv. 4, 5). Their reception of the gospel was the unmistakable evidence of their divine selection. The gospel came in power and in the Holy Spirit. They did not receive the gospel in mere theory, but in the power of the Holy Ghost. Where it is received, the consequent life will manifest itself.

2. They received Paul as a messenger of God (v. 6). The reception of the gospel is largely determined by the kind of preacher. Its reality will be detected in the life of the messenger.

3. The changed life of the Thessalonians (v. 7). They "became followers"—that is, their lives were changed by the power of the gospel. The order in Christian expedience is the reception of the gospel, the changed life, and then the example. The Thessalonians became examples to all in Macedonia.

IV. The Missionary Activity of the Thessalonians (v. 8).

Their experience of the life of Jesus Christ was so real to them that they at once became missionaries. The word of the Lord was so widely and effectively sounded forth that when the apostles returned they needed "not to speak anything." This is as it should be when the gospel is received in the power of the Holy Ghost. The gospel is good news. Good news cannot be kept to oneself; it must be given out.

V. The Results of Paul's Preaching (vv. 9, 10).

1. They turned from idols (v. 9). Thessalonica was a city largely given up to idolatry. Statues were to be seen almost everywhere! The fruits of Paul's preaching were the changed lives of the people. They turned away from idols and gathered together around Jesus Christ in the church. The idol temples were deserted and the churches filled.

2. Awaiting the coming of Jesus Christ (v. 10). Their faith was so real that they looked for the personal return of the Lord Jesus Christ to the earth. The second coming of Christ was a real tenet of faith of the early church. It is so now wherever the gospel is really preached. "And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure." (1 John 3:3).

Go Forward

"We trust we have a good conscience in all things" (Heb. 13, 15). Pass smoothly over the perverseness of those you have to do with, and go straight forward. It is abundantly sufficient that you have the testimony of a good conscience toward God.—John Wesley.

Comfort

God does not comfort us to make us comfortable, but to make us comforters.—Doctor Jowett.

GERMAN PIGEON, WAR CAPTIVE, IS ENJOYING LIFE

Sixteen years ago, just before the end of the World War, writes Helen C. Loomis in the Detroit News, American soldiers participating in the St. Mihiel drive in France found two homing pigeons, Rheingold and Helene, in a dugout that had been occupied by German soldiers. Both birds were taken captive and Rheingold, since rechristened Wilhelm, is still alive and enjoying good health at the pigeon lofts of the U. S. A. signal corps at Fort Monmouth, N. J., Capt. Edgar L. Clewelly, public relations officer of the signal corps, reports.

A number of other pigeons were captured by American forces during the war, but Wilhelm is the sole survivor of them all and likewise holds the distinction of being the only one of all of them to claim the Royal Bavarian lofts as his first home. He still wears with pride the band bearing the imprint of the German royal crown and crest, proof of his former associations with royalty.

Like that other Wilhelm, who was destined to spend so many years of his life on alien soil, and for whom he was named by his American captors when it was discovered through his leg band that he had been bred in the Royal Bavarian lofts, the pigeon Wilhelm carries his years well. For at seventeen, an age at which most homing pigeons have long since passed on, he appears as hale and hearty as many much younger birds, nor has he lost his excellent homing instincts.

The Voice of the American Legion

By The Tinley Park Post No. 615
All Should Support Universal Draft

The American Legion has been charged by some interests with being militaristic. That nothing is farther from the truth is apparent to all far-minded people who consider the activities of the organization in the past.

The American Legion is solidly behind a program of adequate national defense. Its members carried the brunt of the last war! There fore, who knows better the needs of the country than this organization?

During the next Congress The American Legion will marshal its full strength to support the enactment of a universal draft law which has been endorsed by this organization. If passed and approved it will be a long step in the move for peace. This program presents an opportunity for all interests to unite in the common cause for peace. It answers once and for all time the charge that The American Legion is militaristic. Take the profit out of war and you inevitably destroy the incentive for war.

John W. McLarty, who used to train machine gunners in the A. E. F., tells us about three soldiers who had got into enemy territory and did not know it until they came upon a detachment of sleeping German soldiers.

"S-s-sh!" whispered one of the Americans. "Let's capture 'em."
"Ah, why go to that trouble?" demurred another. "Why not shoot 'em and be done with it?"
"Hell, no!" exclaimed the third. "Let's wake 'em up and start a fight!"

Backing The Housing Program

No civic or patriotic organization in Alabama is more enthusiastically behind the Federal Housing Administration's Better Housing Program than The American Legion. The Commander, the Executive Committee and other leaders in the Department have assured the government agencies in charge of the gigantic program of their hearty and active support in this State.

The Legion realizes that the quickest way to get re-employment in private enterprise is through making property repairs and improvements. About one-third of the workers whose families now are on the relief rolls are normally employed in the building industry, and many others in factories, transportation and other fields are indirectly dependent upon the industry for a livelihood.

About 65 cent of every dollar spent for modernizing goes direct to labor and most of this money is immediately put back into the channels of retail trade. For every building tradesman put to work, the F.H.A. estimates that on the average a family of four can be taken off the relief rolls. With winter coming a modernization program will help materially to relieve distress among the unemployed.

The making of needed repairs not only benefits a property and increases its usefulness and value, but generally improves the beauty and appearance of a city or town. A modernization campaign is a worthwhile civic enterprise which appeals to all who are interested in improving the condition of their community.— Alabama Legionnaire.

According to Edward J. Neary, former Department Commander of New York, one of his early clients had been convicted of stealing. The trial judge was one with a reputation for being very tender-hearted.

When the prisoner stood before the bar for sentence, the judge asked in a very subdued tone:

"Have you ever been sentenced to prison?"

"No," sobbed the prisoner, "never yer honor!" And the tears streamed down his cheeks.

"Come, come, my man, don't cry," said the judge consolingly. "You're going to be, right now."

Relief Workers Told to Ban Able Bodied Who Refuse Work

"Get rid of the able-bodied relief chiselers who don't want to work. Give every possible aid to those persons who want to help themselves." Such was the message to all Federal and state relief employees by Lawrence Westbrook, first assistant to Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, in a nation-wide radio address.

"What we want you to understand," Westbrook said, "is simply that you are to exert every effort to make direct relief unnecessary."

In direct charge of the FERA rural rehabilitation program, Westbrook said his job is to make "self-sustaining citizens of persons whom circumstances have forced to become temporary wards of the state."

ORLAND PARK

The poultry bunco given by the Holy Name Society of St. Michael Church was a huge success.

Thirty-one tables filled the hall to capacity and forty-three prizes were distributed. Among the winners of the eleven turkeys were Miss Celeste Welter, Mrs. Wm. Newcomb, Mrs. L. Cowan, Mrs. A. Zerbs, Mrs. H. Busch, Isadore Graf, Joseph Katz, Grant Bone and Mrs. P. J. Croak.

Miss Dorothy Tilsy is teaching at Lewis Champlin at 62nd and Stewart Ave. She is teaching Science (Nature Study) in 7B to three groups of children about ninety i. all. She also is teaching Social Studies and Arithmetic in the same grade. She is enjoying it and looks forward to a happy ten weeks there.

The Orland Park R. N. A. met last Thursday night. A new member, Mrs. Buge, was initiated. Following the business session bunco was played and refreshments were served.

The hostesses were Mrs. Joe Rust, Mrs. Morlock and Mrs. George Cox.

The pupils and teachers of the Orland Park public school enjoyed a two days vacation this week due to Thanksgiving day.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Knox have been entertaining the latter's mother, Mrs. Forslund of Chicago this week.

The Achievement Club held a program in the school auditorium on Tuesday night. More particulars will be given next week.

Mayor Wm. Kollman returned from Iowa the latter part of the week and returned again Monday on a pheasant hunt, accompanied by George and Walter Yunker.

The 1935 automobile license stickers were received by the village clerk this week and a number of them have already been sold.

The village board met Monday night. In the absence of Mayor Wm. Kollman and two of the trustees, a brief meeting was held, just enough trustees being present for a quorum.

John Loebe who was taken ill suddenly last week and who has been confined to bed since, is somewhat improved.

First False Idea On New Corn-Hog
Plan Is Answered

The first mistaken idea about the new 1935 AAA corn-hog program has cropped out simultaneously with the announcement of the plan, and every farmer should check himself to be sure that he has the right information, Farm Adviser L. W. Braham said today.

Some Washington press reports and other sources of information have created the impression that the contract signer's total hog benefit payments will be the same as last year, whereas in reality the total hog payments coming to any individual cooperator will be only two-fifths as much as what they were last year, it was explained.

This year contract signers will be required to adjust their hog production 10 per cent below the 1932-33 base average, and they will receive benefit payments of $15 a head on the hogs in the 10 per cent reduction. Last year signers were required to reduce 25 per cent below the base average and were paid $5 a head on each hog in the 75 per cent of the base average which they were permitted to raise.

This year a farmer with a base average production of 100 hogs, for instance will be required to reduce 10 hogs below that base. He will receive benefit payments of $15 a head for each of the 10 hogs or a total of $150.

Last year he was required to reduce 25 hogs below his base average production of 100 head, which meant that he could raise 75 hogs. For each of these 75 he received a benefit payment of $5 a head, or $375 as compared to the $150 in benefit payments which he will get this year.

The poultry bunco party held at the Orland Park School auditorium Monday night by the Men's Club of the Christ Lutheran church was an immense success. Fifty-four tables played and nearly $75 was realized. The crowd was so large that many had to be turned away.

Patterns 9132 and 9133

One of the most pleasant things about the returning vogue of the suit is that blouses are again high style. Women who pride themselves upon the ability to make a limited budget go a long way love their blouses. Think of the same suit, for instance, with the two different blouses sketched today. Pattern 9131 is a simple affair of tailored lines with pleats that flare out at the bottom in a chic little peplum effect. Pattern 9132 has its becoming surplice accentuated by a graceful frill. Pattern 9132 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 34, 36, 38.

40, 42 and 44. Size 36 requires 2½ yards 39 inch fabric.

Pattern 9133 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 2½ yards 39 inch fabric.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Shake-Up in Policies

Washington.—Administration plans and policies appear to be undergoing a shaking down process. Safely passing the elections and with no need to make moves solely to please particular segments of voters the President appears to have started getting rid of duplication in the various alphabetical agencies of the government. Further, many conservatives are taking some hope out of other administrative actions lately and are willing to believe that the shake-up among the many emergency groups along with White House pronouncements may possibly indicate a slight return toward what they regard as sounder fundamentals.

In a move held by many observers to indicate an attempt by the President to eliminate some waste the President has brought under one supervisory control all of the agencies lending government money. It may be surprising to know that there are ten important federal offices engaged in loaning money. They have been operating largely on their own programs. No attempt has been made heretofore to co-ordinate their efforts. The result has been conflicting policies and undoubtedly waste in results.

The President now proposes that this shall end. He has named the committee for the defined purpose of establishing uniform policy respecting government loans and has declared with emphasis that the duplication must be eliminated.

Some leaders in and out of the government construed this action as indicating a conviction by the President that there were too many agencies floating around doing odd jobs without restraint. Others believed that Mr. Roosevelt was making an honest effort to bring some semblance of order out of chaos in the hope that eventually expenses can be reduced thereby.

In support of this view was the action taken by the Home Owners' Loan corporation which has cut off further loaning on homes. In announcing its action the home loan board said it believed government aid in this direction was no longer necessary, thus inferentially at least saying that some recovery had taken place.

The home loan agency is among those placed under cabinet committee control. It will begin immediately to shrink its organization, turning loose eventually a total of 28,000 workers.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation, another one of the groups which will be guided by cabinet committee policy hereafter, has announced it will not seek additional funds from the forthcoming session of congress. Borrowers who have been using that agency will be accommodated further, of course, in accordance with the terms of their obligations but the whole tendency will be to cut down on new loans.

And so it is for the first time in the current administration we are witnessing a shrinkage, rather than an expansion, in governmental facilities set up as a part of the recovery program of the New Dealers.

Along with the establishment of the loan policy committee, there came an order from the treasury, bearing Mr. Roosevelt's approval, which once again allows unrestricted exports of currency, but not gold or silver metal. Heretofore it has been necessary for private business to obtain a specific license from the treasury before it could ship currency abroad in settlement of obligations. This move is expected to have far-reaching consequences because it lifts from business one of those annoying red tape procedures to which business always objects and a kind of transaction that has never crept into private business in any way.

Gold and silver, both having been nationalized under the New Deal, must stay in this country. Gold must stay in the coffers of the treasury. Nevertheless, from many sources I hear favorable comment on the relaxation of the restrictions on movement of currency because it is generally believed the action will have a psychological benefit. Many persons will feel that if the government at Washington is willing to permit shipment of currency abroad, there is no reason to fear embarrassing situations as a matter of dealing in currency. Of course, obviously, the confidence hitherto reposing in our dollar by foreigners cannot be fully restored as long as gold cannot be shipped but the present change admittedly improves the situation. It should be explained that the treasury still keeps its fingers on the currency movement and that it has the authority to slap on an embargo again whenever it sees fit. This appears to be unlikely, however, as long as international trade retains anything like its present stability. Indeed, experts declare that greater stability in international trade ought to be one of the results and the treasury is obviously looking for that end to be served.

In some quarters the lifting of the ban on currency exports was accepted as meaning that Mr. Roosevelt is not entertaining any thought of further devaluation of the currency. He may have to give consideration to that proposition after congress comes back because there are half a hundred senators and representatives who are avidly pursuing the inflation phantom. They think this will solve the country's economic problems and they can be counted on to bear down with their ideas when the forum of congress again is opened to them.

Whatever these men may do, it is pointed out now, Mr. Roosevelt would be only complicating his own problems by allowing free interchange of currency at this time if he had any thought in mind of changing the dollar value in the not too distant future.

With the time only a month away for selection by the Democrats of their candidate for speaker of the house—selection that means election—the speakership fight is attracting much attention.

Heat is being shown and enemies are being created in every direction. There are at least a dozen members of the house who figure or hope that the Democratic caucus to be held late in December will pick their name for one of the honor posts, speaker, majority floor leader or chairman of the rules committee. At the moment one can deal only with possibilities, for the stage of probabilities is yet in the distance.

Although, as I said, the fight is wide open there are certain straws that tend to show the way the wind is blowing. There are certain backgrounds and conditions as well that must be accepted as having a meaning.

For example, Representative Byrnes of Tennessee, the Democratic leader while the late Mr. Rainey was speaker, normally would be expected to be chosen as speaker. But Mr. Byrnes is not sure. In fact, there are many observers who declare that the odds are against him. For instance, he was not invited aboard the President's special train to make the recent trip to Harrodsburg, Ky.

There is a row brewing between the North and the South. Northern Democrats resent what they regard as southern domination of the house. Consequently, some of the harmonizers are attempting to effect a deal whereby the speakership will go to the South and the post of majority leader be filled by a northern Democrat.

In this combination the names of Representatives Rayburn of Texas and McCormack of Massachusetts, figure most prominently. However, this arrangement has vulnerable spots because there are many other southern Democrats who feel they are entitled to consideration, and they may not be satisfied with such a combination.

On top of all this is a statement from White House quarters that the President will remain aloof. Mr. Roosevelt considers the speakership fight solely a house matter, but it must be added that the President's pronouncement has not deterred some of his satellites. A dozen or more New Dealers are active and some say that they have agreed on Mr. Rayburn and Mr. McCormack. If that be true Mr. Roosevelt is in a tough spot unless he wants to declare openly that he does not favor Mr. Rayburn and Mr. McCormack. In which event he is expected to antagonize their supporters.

Borah Criticizes

The responsibility which the administration carries in having such complete control of governmental machinery has its thorny cushion despite the ability to muster a two-thirds majority in both the house and the senate. One of the sharpest of the thorns apparently is Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, Progressive Republican. Mr. Borah always has played a lone hand in the senate and he apparently is going to do so again.

The first harpoon which the Idaho senator has thrown was directed at the relief policies pressed through and administered by professional relievers. Mr. Borah says there is an enormous amount of waste in connection with the relief activities. He says there are thousands of superfluous jobs being maintained out of relief funds under the guise of distributing the money. He has called attention as well to the lack of co-ordination and the apparent inability of the relief heads to arrive at uniform bases for ministering to the destitute. Having begun the fight well in advance of the opening of congress Mr. Borah can be expected to give it momentum from time to time so that when it reaches the floors of congress it can be counted on to be more than a puff ball.

Of course, the administration has fought to ward off just such attacks as Mr. Borah has inaugurated, by announcement of employment plans and transfer of unemployed from relief rolls to work rolls. I reported to you several weeks ago that Mr. Roosevelt favored elimination of the dole and the creation of work for which the present unemployed would be paid. Yet it is being pointed out in many quarters here that pursuit of such a plan as the President has in mind requires an immense amount of study. Otherwise it is liable to flop and if it goes off half-cocked, undoubtedly the criticism will be more vigorous.

HOW TO SHOOT

By Bob Nichols

Shooting Editor, Field and Stream

EVERY once in a while, some inventor with spare time on his hands tries his bright genius at creating a new form of shotgun "sight" that will make a good wingshot out of a man overnight.

In my humble opinion, this is the "perpetual motion machine" of the wingshooting world.

About ten years ago when I knew a great deal less about wingshooting than I have since learned, even I thought I had a real idea for one of these contraptions that would result in a shooter becoming a whizz-bang wingshot about the third day after he began using it.

Alas—I have since acquired enough experience and good sense to know that there ain't no such animal.

In the first place, such a gadget violates the first principle in wingshooting by enforcing too much concentration of attention on the gun. The "peep" or aperture sight was a wonderful step ahead in accurate rifle shooting. The good rifle shot, however, must be extremely conscious of his gun. He has but a single bullet in the chamber. He must drive that bullet with all the accuracy that keen eyesight and careful co-ordination between brain and trigger finger can muster. Even on running game as big as a deer he must use a high degree of precision that enforces major concentration on the front bead.

I know of course, that many deer are killed in Maine and the Adirondacks, and in the mountains of Pennsylvania, every year by hunters who merely snap-shoot without seeing their sights or even their rifle barrels. The shots are usually at short range, frequently less than 50 yards. Sometimes such a snap shot is necessary. Rather often, as a matter of fact. But no good rifleman ever tries such a snap unless there is no other way out of it. And many is the deer wounded by tyros, too excited and too nervous to aim, that is left to die an agonizing death in the forest perhaps days later.

No, the rifleman with his single bullet needs all the sighting aid he can get. He requires great concentration on his gun. He must be extremely gun-conscious.

The wingshot with shotgun in hand is exactly the opposite. He requires great target concentration. He must be target-conscious first, gun-conscious second. He has a barrage of shot pellets to fling at his target. His target is moving faster than ever deer could run. Also it is smaller. Also his gun range is limited. He must shoot quickly. And again, his shot load is slower than the rifleman's bullet. Only about a third as fast. Consequently he must pay more attention to "lead" or "forward allowance."

Both of his eyes must be wide open. At least 60 per cent of his vision must be concentrated on the flying target. Only about 30 per cent on his gun. And about 10 per cent on the 20-yard area of which the target is the center.

From this you can readily see that any form of "hind sight" on the breech of a shotgun barrel is an absurdity. It tends to make a gun-conscious, rifle-shooting sort of wingshot out of you, and about the only type of shot you can have any hope of hitting with any degree of regularity will be the straightaway shot that requires absolutely no "lead."

Next to the absolute dub, the hardest man in the world to teach wingshooting to is the good rifleman who has never used a shotgun. Trained to absolute gun-consciousness when shooting, he will invariably squint one eye, concentrate about 80 per cent of the vision of the other eye on the gun, and then try to get on the flying target with all the precision he would ordinarily employ in punching holes in a paper bull's-eye at a hundred yards. It simply can't be done.

The wingshot must be target-conscious. The standard front bead at the muzzle is all he has time—or eyesight—to be aware of. And he doesn't see much of that!

Blight Did Not Destroy Sturdy Chestnut Trees

For several years it has been indicated that the chestnut tree that was threatened with complete destruction by the blight or bark disease appearing thirty years ago, from China by way of Europe, was coming back. Now this seems to be substantially confirmed, states a correspondent in the New York Times.

Four years ago, in a research circular prepared by John E. Aughton for the Pennsylvania department of forests and waters, it was stated that "the persistent sprouting ability of the chestnut is its main hope. For twenty years it has persistently met its death loss with repeated crops of new sprouts. The blight has not yet been able to kill all the root systems from which sprouts develop. These sprouts are the main battleground of the blight."

The implication was either that the virulence of the blight itself was on the wane or else that nature was solving the problem through developing greater resistance in the sprouts.

Now it is stated by Henry E. Clepper, in a service letter of the Pennsylvania department of forests and waters, that many blighted chestnut sprouts have been found that are 35 feet tall, with diameters of 5 inches, and that numerous smaller trees have no apparent traces of the disease.

STRING HOLDER SUNBONNET GIRL

Sunbonnet is made of bright colored prints. The face is painted. The ball of string is in the bonnet. String is used passing through a hole in mouth. A very catchy, useful, inexpensive gift.

Why All Blame on "the Woman"?

Age-Old Complaint, Revived, Is Distasteful to Real Intelligence.

The former prime minister of one of the smaller European countries recently made a spectacular public announcement in which he blamed all the country's ills on a woman.

And of ills there are many—as in how many other European countries today! Unemployment, poor harvests, political unrest—all the evils of these hard times the ex-premier enumerated, and then—blamed them on one woman!

The woman has for years been known throughout the world as the mistress of the king, who long ago gave up his crown and his loveless marriage to live with her in exile and seclusion. A few years ago he was restored to his throne, and it developed that their separation was less permanent than the king's supporters had hoped it would be. She is back in the country, again the king's close companion. And now all the nation's troubles, from the fall of thirteen cabinets down to everything but drouth, is laid at her door.

"As long as Mme. — remains in the country," says the former prime minister, "nobody will be able to accomplish anything. She is responsible for all our evils. I suggest we should hold party meetings all over our country to clear up this scandal."

Far be it from this column to hold any brief for the king's mistress. Whatever her real nature, or the circumstances that brought her into the picture, her existence must be distasteful to us. But in throwing upon this woman the blame for all the ills afflicting a nation there is something no less distasteful to our intelligence, unless it happens to strike first our sense of humor.

How easy it is always to blame things on "the woman in the case!" Women, especially the "woman in the case," can cause a good deal of trouble. But if we look deep enough into these cases where everything is heaped upon a woman, we will usually find some man who is not entirely blameless. Not minimizing the devastating powers of many of our sex, it must be pointed out that most men know very well what they want, and very few allow themselves to be used by a woman. To blame the ills of a nation on a woman, in this day and age, will strike most of us as just a bit funny.

If you tire easily—

why not reason out the cause of this unnatural condition?

Your first thought may be, "I must eat more." That's not all. You should enjoy what you do eat. Frequently, the blood cells are low... and this, perhaps, is what makes you feel weak. If this is your trouble the stomach may not be calling for sufficient food. Zest to eat may be lacking. But what a difference S.S.S. makes when taken just before meals. Just try it and notice how your appetite and digestion improve. S.S.S. stimulates the flow of gastric juices and also supplies the precious mineral elements so necessary in blood-cell and hemo-globin up-building. Do try it. It may be the rainbow you need to brush away present discouragement over your health condition.

Do not be blinded by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest substitutes. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

Hall, Vice-president; Grace Moriarty,
Secretary; Frieda Hentch, Treasurer. The Meetings are to be held

The Glee Club is helping Miss

Mr. Dunn reported that his tri-to Urbana proved very educational and worth while. He learned a great deal about the financial condition of the state in regard to schools and observed better methods of teaching. A chorus of two hundred voices and a two hundred piece orchestra provided the entertainment. The Students from High Schools all over the state were picked for the chorus and orchestra. It is hoped that next year some one from Mokena will be entered. Mr. and Mrs. Dunn visited stately were E. H. Cooper and Roy Newton as President and Mrs.

Roosevelt. The audience was rocked with gales of laughter when Jim Davidson as the negro mammy came on the scene pushing a wheel barrow with Owen Creer as the lusty crying baby sister followed by Harold Wymer as mammy's crap shooting wase half. The wiley ways of the 1934 flappers were faithfully portrayed by Marvin Schmaedeke and Jake Kramer. The dignified old Kentucky Colonel and his lady were pleasingly enacted by Howard Cooper and Lester Sayers. General Perishing and Colonel Lindbergh were depicted with true fidelity by F. H.
Glahn and Ralph Agate. We must not forget that old John D. Rockefeller with his oil can was also on hand in the person of James Weir.
Hollywood movie stars also showed off their charms and the ever popular Mae West had a very effective counterpart in Willard Creer who carried out this role to perfection, including the curves and mannerisms of this glamorous star. Kay Francis, another popular movie queen was ably impersonated by John Wymer. With the sounding of an automobile horn Frank Sayers and Earl Reish, Sr., as Mr. and Mrs.
Henry Ford appeared on the scene followed by George Barnett as Sir Harry Lauder. He sang several of the popular Lauder songs and made a decided hit. The big show was climaxed when the wedding party entered with A. C. Kay as the diminutive groom and Elmer Newton as the comely and husky bride. The groom addressed as "the poor fish" by Lester Kay who played the part of the bishop was finally married to the leading lady with much pomp and ceremony. Those in the wedding party were: groomsmen, John Cooper, M. A. Strand,
Ralph Cannon, Frank Powell, J. F.
Donisage; best man, Herman Gee;
ringbearer, Cyril Kay; bridesmaids,
Sherman Knox, Jr., Earl Reisch, Jr.,
Roy Jacobsen, Lewis Ohlich, Roscoe Scott; maid of honor, Harvey
Cooper; flower girls, Ray Doctor, Lawrence Uthe; ring bearer, Clarence Creer. The grand finale came with an overture by the Lockport
M. E. orchestra.

The accompanist was Miss Mildred Newton. The production was under the directorship of Miss Dorothea Jacob of the Symphon Levi Company of Bardstown, Ky.

This was one of the most successful home talent plays presented in Orland Park for years and was witnessed by about 700 persons.

Recipe for Success
Find out where the money is and get there as quickly as you can and when you get there get all you can get there and then get out of there with all you could get out of those that are there before those that are there get out of you all that you got there after you got there.—Kansas City Star.
